THE PRESIDENT'S CHARGE

On the Night of Graduation

The Faculties of Loyola University are met here tonight to welcome you into the company of scholarly men and women. Throughout your undergraduate years this University has endeavored to inspire you with a zeal for truth, an appreciation for beauty, and a love for virtue in philosophy and letters, in arts and sciences, in religion and law.

From all Catholic institutions of learning your predecessors have gone forth marked by culture, filled with zeal for truth, trained to lead their fellow-men.

Your degrees admit you to the honor roll of graduates of Loyola University. You are entering a select company of men and women, of all ages and of all countries, who have enjoyed the privilege of university training and who bear before the world the duties and responsibilities of men and women of scholarship and culture.

In their name, I charge you to be true to the ideals you have learned at Loyola University and in particular to the supreme principle of Jesuit training: All for the Greater Glory of God.

Very Reverend W. Patrick Donnelly, S. J.

president

NEW ORLEANS

VERY OLD AND VERY NEW

In addition to being enriched by the centuries-old Jesuit educational tradition, Loyola University enjoys another advantage . . . It functions in an exceptionally pleasant and stimulating environment, the environment afforded by the City of New Orleans . . . New Orleans has been described as "America's Most Interesting City" . . . It has also been acclaimed as one of America's three distinctive cities . . . One of the characteristics which make it distinctive is the fact that it is at the same time very old and very new . . . Without losing its heritage from the past, it has become a modern American metropolis . . . Situated at the mouth of the Mississippi River, New Orleans is today one of the world's foremost gateways to international trade . . . Accompanying its development into an important center in the world of business, has been a corresponding growth in the realm of the arts and general culture . . . While moving into the future, New Orleans has simultaneously guarded its heritage from the past . . . The same Ol' Man River which has been rolling through New Orleans for over two hundred years still sees the loveliness and the quaintness of the Old New Orleans side by side with the skyscrapers of the modern city . . . There are still the gay customs of Mardi Gras, still the hundred and one other attributes which make New Orleans unique . . . Conscious of the good fortune that is ours in receiving our education in New Orleans, we, the students of Loyola University, New Orleans, dedicate our 1957 Yearbook to "America's Most Interesting City."

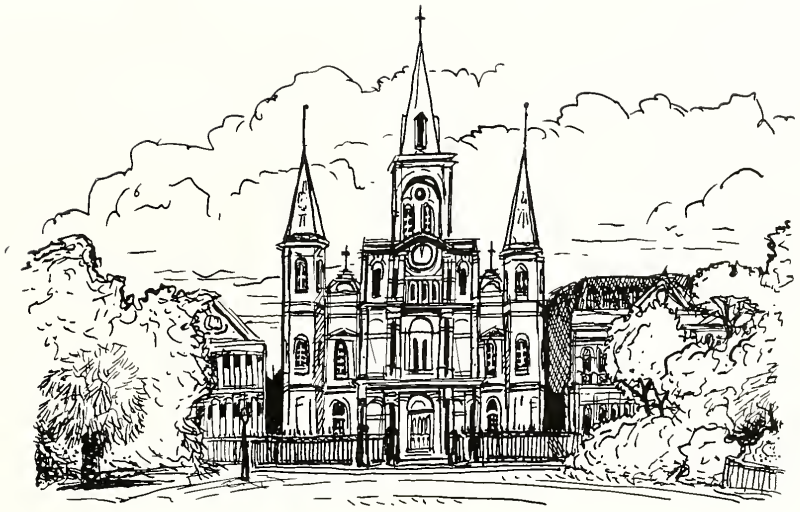
ADMINISTRATION



St. Louis Cathedral, the oldest actual cathedral in North America, was built in 1784.

Dean of Faculties

The Reverend

E. A. Doyle, S. J.

Part tutor, Part preacher . . . the man who wears the mantle of Dean of Faculties must be strong and firm — gentle and pleasant . . . a combination of many attributes that go to compose the person who can take over this executive post.

Dean of Faculties . . . vice-president of Loyola University. A native of Columbia, South Carolina, Father Doyle first came to Loyola in 1947 as an instructor in philosophy, was promoted to the post of Dean of Faculties in 1951 and today is dean of the largest branch of the University.

Dean of Students

The Reverend

R. Boggs, S. J.

Meet the Rev. Robert L. Boggs, Dean of Students.

A newcomer on the campus, Father Boggs has certainly proved himself capable of the job . . . that of making friends with the students.

Father Boggs has done his work well. He has taken an active part in Student Council activities . . . helping to settle some of the more than usual problems. He has spent much time going to meetings of the various clubs, learning all about student activities.

University Registrar

Miss Carmel Discon

That ability to understand the problems of students and teachers who come to her is what has made Carmel Discon one of the most valuable persons on the campus since she first became registrar of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1937.

She yields to no one in the matter of handling admission credentials, degree programs, report cards and has a college of statistics at her fingertips.

JAMES DYSON

Librarian

The Loyola campus boasts of an outstanding library, situated in the middle of the university . . . a library which is the combination of six libraries in one.

The man responsible for this is James Dyson, head librarian.

A native of Louisville, Kentucky, Mr. Dyson first came to Loyola in 1946 as an English instructor with four degrees and experience in the newspaper field.

One year later he became the chief librarian.

Student Council

Tom DuBos, president of the Student Council, welcomes a visitor from Loyola of Chicago to Loyola of New Orleans.

Perhaps the most active organization on the Loyola campus, the Student Council, has as its objective the promotion, coordination, and regulation of student and group conduct.

Established in 1926, the Council serves as a mediator between the students and university authorities and helps to preserve Loyola's traditions and customs.

The student body of Loyola seems to be becoming more interested in student government, voluntary attendance at the Council meetings having increased. This increased interest is due to the pertinent questions and matters handled by the student governing body themselves.

A bird's eye view of a Student Council meeting.

Members: Gertrude Beauford, Robert Courtney, Robert Daigle, Ray Eiffert, Claire Ferrier, Leon Ferrier, William Finegan, Charles Hausknecht, Fred Lipps, Albert Temes, Fritz Veters, and Robert Winn.

The Central Committee is the newest governing body on Loyola campus. It was organized to coordinate B.A. Organizational Activities and to plan and promote major Business Administration activities. The presidents of the various B.A. clubs, plus two sophomore representatives and the president of the B.A. freshman class compose the membership of the committee. This year the organization sponsored a Business Administration dance, the "Back the Pack" program, which that college won; scheduled speakers for the B.A. convocations. The last event of the '56-'57 year was the private Senior Prom of the College of Business Administration held on the night ending senior exams, May eighteenth.

Albert Temes, Fritz Veters, Peter Cavallo, Claire Ferrier, secretary, Bob Daigle, president, Leon Ferrier, Gertie Beauford, Ray Eiffert, and Ben Hauskneckt, treasurer.

Pan Hellenic Council

The Pan Hellenic serves to iron out the various problems presented by the fraternities and fraternity life on the campus. This council regulates the rushing season and social activities. It also has formulated the rules concerning the rushing and pledging seasons of all of the social fraternities.

Inter-Organization Council

President ..... Thomas DuBos
Secretary ..... Betty Johnston

DuBos

The Inter-Organization Council was established in 1951 by the office of the Dean of Students. It is composed of the presidents or representatives of all of the student organizations on the Loyola campus. It functioned mainly as a distributive organ for decisions of administrative policy concerning student activities and as a sounding board of student thought. Meetings were held during the first week of October, December, February, and April. The April '57 meeting will long be remembered by those attending. It was at this meeting that the first motion was presented to the floor, presented by Mr. Dan Stapp of Law School, who suggested that the organization dissolve itself. This passed by unanimous vote of the membership. This council is no longer, requiescant in pace . . .

Pershing Rifles

Miss Margaret Blades, Pershing Rifles sponsor

The Pershing Rifles is a national military society which aims to encourage and develop the highest ideals of American citizenship and the military profession.
Under the leadership of Cadet Major Edmund Schmidt, Commanding Officer, the Pershing Rifles during the past nine months have enjoyed great success. Beginning in October, there was a call out for pledges who were introduced to a rigorous training program. Included in this training were early morning drill practices at which time the pledges were trained in military discipline and close order drill. After a four week period, those cadets who exhibited the highest degree of military ability were accepted.

On the Loyola drill field, the PR's execute a Queen Anne's solute in one of the many practices held each week by the group.

Cadet Col. John Derrick presents the best team trophy to Pershing Rifles Commander Edmund Schmidt ofter the Fourth Army competition in which schools like Tulone, U. of Miami, Spring Hill, North East La. State and Centenary were participants.

After an exhibition during the halftime of the ROTC sponsored basketball game in February, the Pershing Rifles began training for a dual drill meet with Tulane University late in the month.

Their biggest event of the year was the fourth regimental drill meet at Mobile, Alabama. Many colleges from the fourth army area attended including Tulane, Mississippi State, Ole Miss, the University of Miami and Spring Hill. The Loyola drill team walked off with every possible honor including trophies for the best basic platoon, the best fancy platoon and the team trophy for the entire meet.

To top off the successful year, the PR's turned to social activities, concluding with their annual spring formal at Camp Leroy Johnson. Lt. Col. Marion B. Noland, PMS & T and Capt. Tom C. Oberst, PR moderator were received in the Pershing Rifles as honorary members at this affair. Only freshmen and sophomores in the ROTC program are eligible for membership in the Pershing Rifles. The only junior and senior cadets who are members are the officers who command the unit.

Pershing Rifleman Pat McGinity displays the new uniform the group adapted this year. The outfit consists of a maroon helmet liner and maroon scarf, white belt and leggings, and TW shirt and trousers.

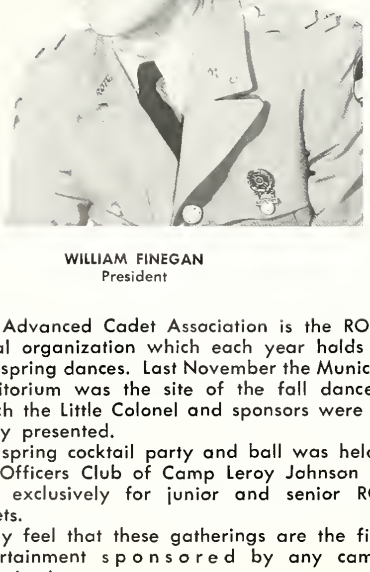
Advanced Cadet Assn.



WILLIAM FINEGAN
President

Vice-President ..... JOEL BORRELLO

Secretary ..... MICHAEL FEDERICO

Treasurer ..... MARCO TUMINELLO

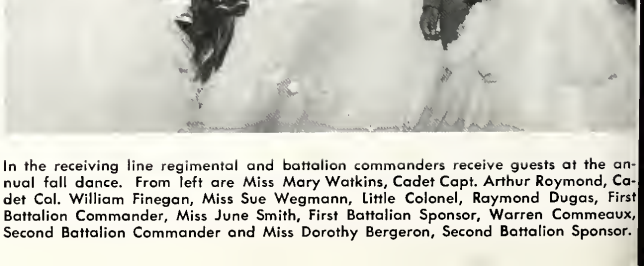
The Advanced Cadet Association is the ROTC's social organization which each year holds fall and spring dances. Last November the Municipal Auditorium was the site of the fall dance at which the Little Colonel and sponsors were formally presented.

The spring cocktail party and ball was held at the Officers Club of Camp Leroy Johnson and was exclusively for junior and senior ROTC cadets.

Many feel that these gatherings are the finest entertainment sponsored by any campus organization.



In the receiving line regimental and battalion commanders receive guests at the annual fall dance. From left are Miss Mary Watkins, Cadet Capt. Arthur Roymond, Cadet Col. William Finegan, Miss Sue Wegmann, Little Colonel, Raymond Dugas, First Battalion Commander, Miss June Smith, First Battalion Sponsor, Warren Commeaux, Second Battalion Commander and Miss Dorothy Bergeron, Second Battalion Sponsor.

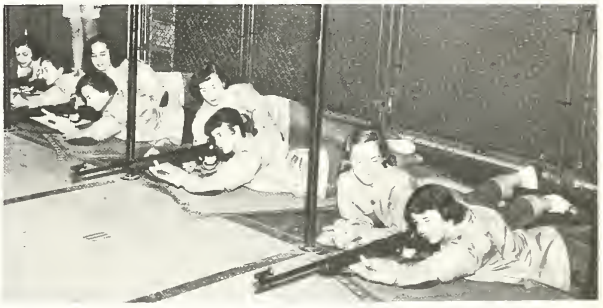
The girls who went undefeated through the 1956-57 school year, boast one of the finest rifle teams in the United States. In postal matches they humbled such schools as Cornell, Michigan U., Arkansas State, North Georgia College and the University of New Hampshire. In their two shoulder to shoulder matches Spring Hill and Louisiana Poly were the victims. The Loyola girls' team challenged every other women's team in the country and those that accepted were defeated. With no graduating seniors among them, the girls expect to be even better come September.



As Sergeant Taylor looks on, coaches instruct their firers as to the proper position.

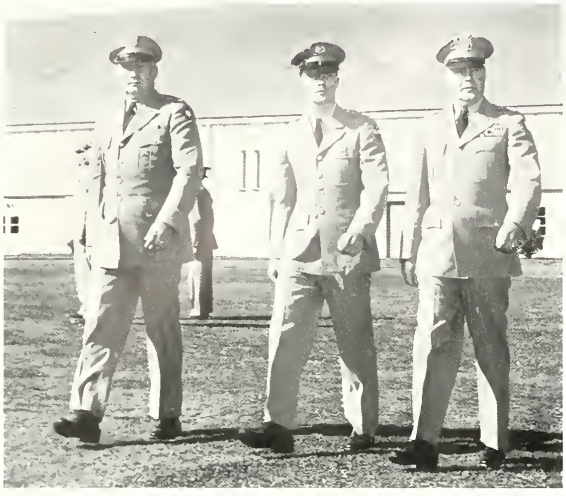
Annual Inspection



Toward the close of each school year, Fourth Army Headquarters sends an inspection team to visit each ROTC unit in this area. Heading this year's team was Colonel G. C. Willette. The team toured the unit to determine the adequacy of the facilities for the training of cadets and the caliber of instruction. The visit was closed with a formal inspection of the troops in ranks. The upper left photo shows Colonel Willette trooping the line. Then comes Officers Center, upper right, followed by the pass in review, lower left. The final step is the inspection of each cadet individually. The fourth photo shows Colonel Willette inspecting a Pershing Rifleman as Cadet Col. Finegan and Col. Noland look on.

Awards Day

The Rev. Edward Dayle, S.J., congratulates Cadet Lt. Col. Robert Daigle after presenting to him the Dean's Award. The award is given to the senior cadet wha has achieved the highest academic average in Military Science for faur years.

Cadet Richard Bodet received the President's Award as the best drilled cadet for 1956-57 from the Very Rev. W. Patrick Donnelly, S.J. Also in the picture is Maj. Gen. Norman H. Vissering.

At its last formation each year, the ROTC unit holds its annual Awards Day ceremony and presents medals and ribbons to those cadets who have proven leadership and outstanding academic ability throughout the school term. The best drilled cadet is chosen on a competitive basis during this ceremony and outstanding military students together with sponsors and rifle teams are honored. This year some twenty-one cadets and eight co-eds received awards from members of the Loyola faculty and military personnel from the Fourth Army area.

The Association of the United States Army Medal was presented by Maj. Gen. Norman H. Vissering ta Cadet Maj. Edmund Schmidt for military proficiency, leadershlp and academic wark.

After the presentation of awards, military personnel, faculty and friends watch as the regiment passes in review.

Summer Camp

Colonel Ralph T. Simpson, Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Arkansas and Deputy Camp Commander, addresses cadets upon arrival at Ft. Hood.

Cadets prepare to lay anti-tank mines as part of their summer training.

Members of the Advanced Course are required to attend camp one summer, normally between the first and second year. All students are housed, uniformed, and given medical attention at government expense while at camp. The duration of camp is six weeks and begins about the middle of June. The military training consists of practical and theoretical training. In addition to this training the student has an opportunity to participate in healthy outdoor sports of all kinds and in competition with young men from other colleges. Last year some 1,350 students from the fourth army schools were broken down into 10 companies, each company assigned four officers and a number of enlisted personnel. The scope of training is wide and students learn all types of tactical approaches to situations plus different systems of defense.

Cadets learn to line up an Army convoy. Each cadet received a chance to drive different types of military vehicles.

Colonel Delmer P. Anderson explains a field fortification position to the Very Rev. W. Patrick Donnelly, President of Loyola. Fr. Donnelly was one of 25 college presidents to visit to ROTC training facilities.

The Year

September is the month for registration and Capt. Shumaker and Maj. Jordan are seen here accepting the application of four Loyolans to the ROTC unit.

The Very Rev. W. Patrick Donnelly is shown chatting with Maj. Gen. Mark McClure (left) and Lt. Col. R. W. Darrah during their liaison visit to Loyola in the fall.

The year round Billy Connick (second from right) seems to enjoy pulling someone's leg. Here Fr. Doyle is the apparent victim.

Cadet Sgt. Ed Pesche shows the workings of the ROTC's cannon to students during the Annual High School Day in April.

Lt. Col. Marion Noland offers congratulations to Cadet Tom Finney, one of thirty-three cadets to be commissioned in May. At right is commission custodian Capt. Tom Oberst.

Loyola Varsity Basketball Scoring

Loyola's 1956-57 cagers, with the championship of the Louisiana Invitational Tournament and another NCAA appearance to their credit, closed the season with a promising 14-11 record. Led by three hoopsters, John "Crit" Lorio, captain and Most Valuable Player; Pete Gaudin, high scorer and the outstanding student-athlete; and Bob McLaughlin, sophomore sensation, the Pack ran through one of the toughest schedules in Loyola athletic history.

Top notch opponents included LSU, Illinois, Xavier of Cincinnati, Dayton, Bradley, Louisville, Florida State, Texas A&M, Houston and Oklahoma City. And, proving that they really have what it takes, the Wolves succeeded in garnering wins over the Aggies, Tigers, Houston, Oklahoma City and FSU.

Coach "Big Jim" McCofferty experienced one of his greatest thrills as an LU coach when his Wolves lost a heart-breaker to Bradley's Braves in the famous Chicago Stadium. At that, the Wolves scored a moral victory in the last-second loss and received a standing ovation from the crowd as they left the court.

Wolf Pups

Coach Buford "Boo" Jones of Loyola Wolfpups, the Pack of the future, again came out on the long end of the season's record, with a fine 17-6 tally.

On the won side of the ledger, the Pups copped the New Orleans Senior AAU cage league, going through the action with an undefeated record, and also participated in the Junior AAU hoop tournament.

The Pups were led during the season by a pair of basket-burning cagers, Art Radvilas and Larry Henneberger, who wound up top over-all and inter-collegiate scorers respectively.

LU Baseball-1957

Coach Jack Orsley and his LU baseballers salvaged their 1957 season by winning six of their last seven games and came out with a 9-7 record for the diamond year, their 12th straight winning season.

Managing wins over Mississippi Southern, Northwestern of Evanstan, Spring Hill, Louisiana State, Centenary and the University of Mississippi. The Pack was led by outfielders Jean Faust and Bob McLaughlin, who batted at a 323 and 315 clip respectively. Also potent on the field were infielder Marco Tuminello, catcher Butler Powell and hurlers Lloyd "Paachie" Pollet and Lee Ray Mire. The latter two ended the season at 5-3 and 2-0.

Newly re-organized, the Wolf netmen proved to be the winningest team on the campus this year and also proved to have the winningest coach. REVIEW

September

The first freshman convocation of the year – the newcomers were introduced to University officials and to the tradition of Loyola. They learned what they can expect of the school and what is expected of them. The speakers were Miss Molero, Fr. Donnelly, Fr. Doyle, Fr. Cooper, Col. Noland and Coach McCafferty.

Left to wander around the halls one freshman inspected the trophy cases on the second floor of Marquette Hall.

Freshmen Cathy Devoti, Gus Gensel and Martin Gravel were taken on a tour. Here their guide, Pete Cavallo, explains the meaning of each figure in the Seal of Loyola University.

After the formalities, life seems to take on a brighter, more personal note. The freshmen prepare to be taken on tours of the campus.

The boys of APO lead the way to the main section of the university grounds.

Placement tests were administered to all the freshmen in the library.

The return of the upper classmen – registration for this fortunate group was made easy by pre-registration. Seniors Ann Smith, Shirley Trusty and Pete Marrero stand in the bursar's line for the last time. According to this picture they aren't very much depressed by that idea.

From the bursar's line one moved to the Student Lounge where Richard Vidacovich took pictures for the ID cards. More about that later.

After all the tests, lines, parties, and lines (and more lines) classes started. These are the frosh dents in one of their first labs.

The annual Freshman Hop was held on the last day of orientation week.

Oh well, they are only freshmen!

Music for the Hop was provided by Campus Capers under the direction of Curtis Rome.

With the classes came the book lists, with these came a flood of students to the Bookstore.

And as the last little freshman left the campus for home and a well earned rest the Evening Division registration was begun.

The Loyola Forum is an educational, entertaining program designed for the students and the general public. The Forum spreads Catholic truth and culture – the truth and culture inculcated by the University within its walls – to the outside world by bringing to New Orleans famous Catholic personages, prominent in every field – business, religion, science, art, government – to lecture on current issues and personal experiences. Countess Tolstoy was the first attraction on the forum this year. Her visit to the city of New Orleans corresponded almost to the day with the opening of the motion picture version of her father's book, "War and Peace."

The Loyola Student Lounge was the scene of great tension and relief during the World Series. These pictures were taken during Don Larsen's no hitter.

Homecoming

Fr. Ross Druhan, S.J., distributes Communion at the alumni Mass. His altar boy is a member of the class of 1936.

The Alumni Association gathered for its annual Homecoming celebration the week of November 25. Mass in Holy Name of Jesus Church and a Communion breakfast in the University cafeteria were first on the agenda. The first day of events was ended with a cocktail party in the Fieldhouse. The class of '31 was honored with a special program on December first. The Silver Anniversary Class had a Mass said for it; a breakfast followed. A cocktail party in its honor was held that evening in the Alumni lounge in Cummings Hall, after which a buffet supper was served in the Cafeteria. The festivities closed with the Homecoming Ball held on the night of December first at the Jung Hotel. Miss Mary Aitken was chosen queen and she and her court, Andre Banville, Margaret Blades, Dorothy Bergeron, Millie Marshall, June Smith, and Mary Fokes, were presented at the ball escorted by members of the honored class of '31.

Members of the alumni, almost five hundred, proceed to Holy Name Church for the kick-off of the Homecoming events, the Mass.

The Campus Court

Past president of the Student Council, Tom Walshe, and this year's president, Tom DuBos, stand ready to present Mary Aitken with the loving-cup trophy of her office.

The Campus Queen and her maids are traditionally presented to the public immediately before the Blue Key Talent Night program. The court is selected by popular vote of the entire student body. It is composed of the queen and six maids, one of whom is a student of the Evening Division. The members of the 1956-57 court: Andre Banville, Arts and Science sophomore; Dorothy Bergeron, Arts and Science junior; Margaret Blades, Arts and Science sophomore; Millie Marshall, Business Administration sophomore; June Smith, Arts and Science senior; Mary Fokes, Evening Division, and Miss Aitken.

Members of the Philaristi and their friends applaud appreciatively for this chic ensemble.

Of interest to the ladies connected with Loyola was the Spring Fashion Show sponsored by the Philaristai aboard the Del Mar. It was enjoyed by mothers, friends, and coeds alike. And to former Loyolans the Alumni's annual Children's Party gave them a chance to show off their offspring.

On May twenty ninth at eight o'clock three hundred and eighty-four graduates filed onto the Field House stage and by ten o'clock (a record time) all tassels had been duly turned, all diplomas duly distributed.

Honorary degrees were conferred upon, left to right: Arthur C. Hughes, John Legier, Paul M. Segal and Arthur M. Hayes.

Right: Mary Healy, Wolf editor, has her tassel turned and is congratulated by Father Donnelly.

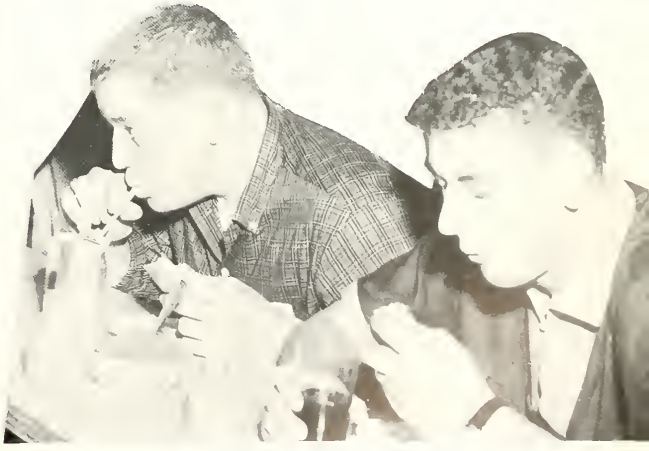
Chemistry freshman Gus Gensel points out Aruba, his home, to our photographer. Gus holds a singular distinction: he is the only Loyola student to hold a donkey riding permit.

Earleen Fournet interviews the next-door-neighbor of the Journalism Department, Mr. Chico Dog.

A soldier of Rome relays a message to the haughty Pilate in a scene from Leo Zinzer's original play, "Pilate."

Richard Vidacovich acts as tour guide through the inner workings of a frozen feline during the High School Day doings.

Herb LaSalle, the cafeteria host, fixes a super-de-luxe buffet supper for visitors to the University.



The cafeteria is another home-away-from-home to the ranch house boys. It is the scene of breakfast, lunch, dinner, and before breakfast, lunch and dinner, and between breakfast, lunch and dinner meals.

The Mothers from Immaculata leave for the convent after their last class.

Bishop Sheen was made an honorary citizen of the city of New Orleans during his visit to the city in connection with his appearance on the Loyola Forum. Representing the mayor, Councilman James E. Fitzmorris presented the certificate to the Bishop.

Informal pictures of the action in the annual Sodality-sponsored Student-Faculty basketball game, held during the Lenten Mission Drive, are always something to see. Fr. Poche, a newcomer to Loyola, was a faculty star. It seems that Johnny Cottingham can't believe that a member of the older generation could possess such vim, vigor and vitality.

The veteran star of the annual game is Fr. Callens. Here he is in the process of adding two points to his impressive total for the night.

To the right we see the Queen of the Faculty, an un-named good sport whom all of the education majors will, without a doubt, recognize.

Some work while others dream.

Members of the Maroon and Wolf executive staffs indulge in a bit of construction work as they lay a walk from the Journalism Building to the rest of the University. The walk was a much desired luxury and its construction robbed the world of several Olympic swimmers. Due to weak construction material the life of the walk was not a long one.

Fr. Burke councils the members of his four o'clock Ethics class. These girls are members of Kappa Goffa Gamma, Father's legendary sorority for credit hounds, people who sleep in class, (eyes open or closed), Physics majors, "my darling education girls," and any other takers of General and Special Ethics.

The faculty vests before the Baccalaureate Mass on May twenty sixth.

Physics Department Honored

Father Benedetto and Father Donnelly accept a citation for the Physics Department from Dr. William Hinkley of the Research Corporation of New York. Loyola's physics program was the first to be so cited in the country. The citation was given in recognition of the job the department has done in educating and experimenting in physics.

Future home of the television station. Work on this structure is to be completed in September and the station will move into operation shortly after.

THE WOLF

University Yearbook

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY NEW ORLEANS, LA.

This is a thank you note to all those who helped so much with the 1957 Wolf. Father Toomey gave advice and encouragement when it was needed most. Russ Cresson took pictures and more pictures for the Wolf. John Finney, Jr. designed the cover. We think it is spectacular. Myles DeRussy took the pictures for the Homecoming Court. Miss Joan Gaulene and Mr. E. P. Fricke offered the use of their journalistic experience. In my opinion, there has never been a better Wolf staff than the one which assisted me this year. Few people realize how much time, work and thought enter into the birth of a yearbook. We of the Wolf, however, regard the finished product as well worth the effort. Indeed, the experience was a pleasure.
